

Abstract of the Disclosure

A model stored in a memory accessible by a video transcoder includes a first rate-distortion function modeling a requantization of an input video. A second-rate distortion function models a resynchronization marker insertion rate for the transcoded video, and a third rate-distortion function models an intra-block insertion rate for the transcoded video.